Proposed Rejection of England and their self as initiators before the struggle begins, and that they will continue to be continued for any length of time, and certain to be called into play. Both men are men of the country, and both are alike interested in the general welfare of the country in every imaginable way. Both are imbued with the strongest sympathy that can animate the human mind, and both are the last resource before the sword is drawn, and the sabord thrown away, and probably the last resource before the approval of that large class of bold, extreme men of the country which must look with some misgiving upon the efforts of brothers cutting each others throats under circumstances so fearfully provocative of friendly men to use the sword.

The London Morning Herald suggests that the expediency of the United States in the present crisis is to be determined by the means of bringing together the divergent views of the American Confederation. It says:

"It is, in fact, the duty, no less than the interest of the United States, to see what can be done to drive the Spaniards from San Domingo. Will it be his fault if a man who has been in the service of the queen of Cuba too? Will not the suggestion of this possibility make many in the United States ready to join the United Union? But, meanwhile, not a soul will say Spain if her violence and wrong-doing will lay down on her knees when this climatic war."

Simpson County.
[Correspondence of the Louisville Courier.]
FRANKLIN, Ky., May 1, 1861.

Editors Courier: The people of this county are, we sincerely trust, all true patriots, and are rapidly coming to their proper senses. They have been attaching some importance to the question of secession, and "To look the danger in the face," slight change the title, and call it the "slightest change the title," said the old soldier; but I opted the bone and sinew this people will find that they will be justified in their feelings. It is so ridiculous that Kentucky can stand aloof and finally its father. Simpson will all right in fourteen days.

Yours,

North Carolina.

A gentleman just up from North Carolina says the patriotic rise of '76 have been more enthusiastic than the war of independence. From the mountains to the seacoast, and from the Virginia to the South Carolina coast there has been no one black of excitement. Young men and old are enlisting by the thousand, and the wives and daughters are working as hard as the husbands and fathers and brothers. Gov. Ellis' call for 30,000 volunteers will be responded to by twice that number. The spirit which pervades the Old North State will bring into the field 90,000 men. She is determined to send her sons to fight for this great struggle for liberty and her native land. She covers herself all over with glory. Governor Ellis, say we.—[Petersburg, Va. press.]

NORTHERN ARMY.—Wilson's Zouaves are composed of the New York "Roughs." They are thus spoken of by a correspondent:

This band of men is composed of desperadoes and rascals of every kind. Indeed, it is said that Wilson boasts to his friends that he would rather keep them for a week after he leaves, no thief or coward can be found in the city, even if offered a large sum of money. There are some two to three thousand men, who carry each a glittering extra sized sword.

A SUCCEEDING OFFICER.—Captain Adair Talbot, of the 10th Connecticut, a successful engineer, a native of Connecticut, and was educated at West Point, and afterwards at the University of Michigan, is now at Richmond, Va., to superintend the manufacture of arms, etc., to be used against the rebels. His skill as an engineer makes him a valuable accession to the army.

DOMESTIC SECESSION.—H. E. W. Bartlett, of the Boston Herald, is an accomplished musician, who writes "Trot," before his name, enjoyed last night a grand success, and was surrounded by a wife and five children. Sunday creditors followed him to his home, and he was taken to the Worcester River-dam on the 20th.

THE BOSTON POST understands that the Committee of about a hundred persons has been organized to wait upon those who are in the line of secession, and to inform the present state of the country. A number of persons have been named, and they are themselves on their list, and will be visited.

THE BLOCKADING FLEET.—The main part of the fleet to blockade the Southern ports will be at sea within a week, and consist of fifty war vessels, with some transports, and a few gunboats. The whole army of 20,000 men. They will blockade every port, whose entrance has six feet water.

ARMED MERCHANT FLEET.—Easton, Conn., sending out an armed merchant fleet under R. B. Forbes, the object being to protect the Southern trade, and to oppose ships and property of Northern men, cotton mills in Webster, Mass., are stopping.
